This tour features homes with native landscaping, composting toilets, desert food production, passive solar systems, rainwater harvesting systems of all shapes and sizes, and more. Register for the in-person tour here!

Are You The Next Flow365 Monitor?

We have so much to learn from our creeks and rivers. From the calm flows with peaceful melodies, to the rush of our monsoon rivers that roar for attention, our rivers are speaking to us. What do you hear them say? We are encouraged by what we are hearing and learning from our creeks and rivers through the Flow365 Monitoring Program, where community members like you learn and collect data on what our creeks and rivers tell us. Could you be the next Flow365 Monitor? We are hosting a training next Tuesday, October 17th @ 5:30pm - 7:30pm, register here to attend and join the team!

Learn and Explore How to Cultivate Native Edibles

On Tuesday, October 24, 2023 - 5:30pm to 7:00pm Folks will learn what “native edible” means ecologically, regionally, and culturally. We will review a variety of native edible species and what to keep an eye out for harvesting now and what to look forward to in months to come. Register for an upcoming class here.

Register for an Upcoming Hydrate at the Living Lab Class

Join us for our Hydrate at the Living Lab classes! These hands-on classes are taught in-person at our Living Lab and Learning Center, and will give you access to working systems and resources to help you achieve your hydro-local, urban sustainable living goals.
